MARKET SUMMARY

INDIA

- The Indian market has experienced downward pressure this week, primarily driven by a sharp depreciation of the INR against the USD, which has forced local price levels lower.
- Despite weaker underlying fundamentals, ship recycling sentiment remains cautiously positive, with recyclers showing resilience in expectations of near-term improvement.
- A severe shortage of incoming vessels continues to weigh on overall market momentum, limiting transactional activity.
- Market participants remain selective, with activity largely dependent on price alignment and currency stability.

BANGLADESH

- The Chattogram market has been significantly disrupted due to heavy rains and severe flooding, effectively paralyzing daily operations. Recycling activities have slowed considerably, with some yards halting operations entirely amid adverse conditions.
- High-priced vessel offers are struggling to find buyers, as subdued steel plate sales continue to dampen overall sentiment.
- Despite current challenges, a few optimistic breakers remain active, showing willingness to secure vessels for delivery ahead of the upcoming national budget.
- Market participants are closely monitoring both weather conditions and economic developments for signs of recovery.

PAKISTAN

- The Gadani market has seen no significant change compared to the previous week, with conditions remaining largely unchanged.
- Activity levels continue to be subdued, with limited buyer engagement and no notable transactions reported.
- Sentiment remains cautious, as recyclers prefer to stay on the sidelines amid ongoing uncertainty.

- The Turkish recycling market has shown signs of slight softening over the past week, reflecting a moderation in overall sentiment. Many recycling yards in Aliğa are operating at or near full capacity, reducing the urgency to acquire additional tonnage and limiting bidding activity.
- Continued weakening of the Turkish lira has contributed to a more cautious and risk-aware approach among recyclers. While a softer currency could enhance competitiveness, volatility has instead encouraged restraint in purchasing decisions.
- Yards with available capacity may still demonstrate stronger interest and adopt a more competitive stance; however, such cases remain limited.
