MARKET SUMMARY

INDIA

- The India market has softened this week, with sentiment under pressure due to the rising exchange rate and a more cautious economic outlook.
- Buyers remain less inclined to commit at current levels, as higher day-to-day costs, slower construction activity and weaker steel demand continue to affect overall buying appetite.
- Specialized vessels are still expected to remain attractive for Indian recyclers, although broader demand is likely to stay selective in the near term.

BANGLADESH

- The Bangladesh market remains broadly similar to last week, with overall sentiment steady but activity slowing due to ongoing rainfall.
- Sales activity has reduced, while several yards are currently well supplied, making buyers less willing to acquire fresh tonnage at present price levels.
- Buying interest is expected to remain cautious in the short term until weather conditions improve and yard demand becomes more active.

PAKISTAN

- The Pakistan market remains largely unchanged this week, with sentiment continuing to hold firm.
- Supply constraints continue to support the market, as limited scrap, HMS and shredded material is being received from the Middle East, while fresh vessel availability also remains limited.
- Overall, the shortage of imported material and limited tonnage supply are keeping price ideas firm, although buying activity remains selective.

TURKIYE

- The recycling market in Turkiye remains relatively stable this week, although sentiment continues to be affected by the depreciation of the Turkish lira, which has limited buying appetite and kept activity for fresh tonnage subdued.
- Most recycling yards, particularly EU-approved facilities, are operating at high capacity levels, resulting in limited availability for prompt deliveries and a cautious approach across the market.
- Overall, market participants remain watchful of currency movements and yard capacity developments, with sentiment expected to stay steady but cautious in the near term.
