MARKET SUMMARY

INDIA

- The USD strengthened further against the Indian Rupee (INR) this week, with the Rupee remaining under depreciation pressure.
- Despite the currency headwinds and a softer steel market, overall sentiment stayed firm, supported by steady buyer appetite and improved local market confidence.
- Steel plate prices corrected by approximately 2–4% across most categories; however, demand for recycling candidates remained resilient, underpinned by the dearth of available recycling tonnage.

BANGLADESH

- The local market in Bangladesh remains slow, although some activity has started to return.
- With elections expected in February and increasing expectations of a stable government, buyers have begun to re-enter the market to evaluate potential purchases.
- Sellers are advised to remain cautious when considering larger vessels, as financing remains difficult in this location and can still hinder the successful execution of such transactions.

PAKISTAN

- Buyer presence remains limited, with only a small number of participants active in the market.
- However, buyers have been unable to secure meaningful tonnage, largely due to their inability to compete with pricing levels being offered in India and Bangladesh.
- Unless there is a significant improvement in market infrastructure and competitiveness, Pakistan is expected to remain behind the region in terms of achievable pricing.

TURKIYE

- Import levels softened by around USD 1 over the week, while conditions in the local market remained broadly unchanged.

- Overall, Turkey continued to follow its typical trading pattern, with limited momentum and no material shift in underlying sentiment or pricing fundamentals, leaving the market largely stable with little of note to report.
