MARKET SUMMARY

INDIA

- The Indian ship recycling market witnessed reduced buying interest this week, primarily due to the significant strengthening of the USD, making imports more expensive for local buyers.
- Market participants remain cautious as the strong dollar continues to weigh on sentiment and purchasing appetite.
- The DASR (Document of Authorization for Ship Recycling) process remains ongoing, with completion expected within the next two to three months.

BANGLADESH

- The Bangladesh ship recycling market remained firm this week, with healthy demand observed across available tonnage.
- Sentiment has been supported by the evolving political landscape, which has brought a more positive outlook to the market.
- Overall conditions appear stable; however, there are no major new developments to report at this stage.

PAKISTAN

- The Pakistani ship recycling market remained largely unchanged, with no fresh developments compared to previous weeks.
- Market activity continues to be subdued, with no vessels reportedly offered to the destination.
- Additionally, the market is not yet fully operational, contributing to the lack of activity and momentum.

TURKIYE

- The Turkish ship recycling market showed some improvement in underlying fundamentals this week.
- Import prices increased by approximately USD 8, while domestic steel prices improved by around USD 10.
- Despite these positive indicators, vessel prices have yet to reflect any upward movement. Market participants remain watchful, with expectations that the coming week may provide clearer direction.
