MARKET SUMMARY

This week, the shipping industry and broader maritime market attention remained focused on Posidonia in Greece, a key platform for industry engagement, market insights, and commercial discussions. Relevant developments and key takeaways from the event will be consolidated and shared in the upcoming weekly update.

INDIA

- The Indian market remained highly unpredictable this week, with prices holding steady and overall sentiment staying soft amid limited activity.
- Buyer appetite remains firm nonetheless, supported by a steady flow of vessels arriving in India, including a notable share of dark fleet tonnage, while improved steel availability has traders looking to tighten recycling payment terms.
- End prices remain the same whether recycling a standard vessel or a dark fleet unit; however, with dark fleet tonnage acquired at cheaper rates, conventional recyclers are finding it increasingly hard to compete.
- On the policy front, the Government issued its first-ever ship recycling credit note under the new scheme, confirming the mechanism is now operational, a positive step towards strengthening India's competitiveness as a recycling destination over the longer term.

BANGLADESH

- The Bangladesh market remained largely the same as last week, with conditions broadly unchanged.
- Following the Eid break, yards have resumed operations, though activity stays quiet for now, with no sales reported and overall buying reduced.
- Rates have softened alongside the slower pace of business, keeping the market subdued at present.
- That said, momentum is expected to build over the course of this week as operations settle back into rhythm.

PAKISTAN

- With the market closed for the Eid holidays over the past week, no sales were concluded and conditions held steady from before the break.
- Buyers remain keen for fresh tonnage, though limited vessel availability continues to constrain purchasing.
- On the regulatory front, Pakistan passed new ship recycling legislation this week advancing the Hong Kong Convention, introducing mandatory hazardous-material surveys and certification for vessels arriving for recycling - a positive step for the longer-term growth of the country's recycling sector.

TURKIYE

- The Turkish market has remained relatively quiet over the past week, with limited activity, few notable transactions, and cautious sentiment keeping trading levels subdued.
- Despite the current lull, visits and inspections at Turkish yards by several major container operators offer some encouragement, raising hopes of larger recycling projects and a pick-up in activity going forward.
- Forecasting remains difficult, however, as internal politics, regional tensions, and the continued depreciation of the Lira sustain a high level of uncertainty over future prices and market direction.
