MARKET SUMMARY

INDIA

- The market remains highly cautious, as the sharp decline in the dollar over the past two weeks has distorted price expectations, leaving buyers unable to match offered levels with prevailing local steel prices.
- Ship availability is extremely limited, with most of the few units available, heading toward Bangladesh, resulting in Indian yards staying largely idle.
- Current activity is driven primarily by dark-fleet tonnage; however, only a small number of yards are engaging in such purchases, keeping overall buying interest subdued.
- Although seasonal winter demand is supporting domestic steel consumption, persistent pressure on steel prices continues to limit any meaningful upside for the local market.

BANGLADESH

- Local market conditions have deteriorated further over the past week, with price levels continuing to slide and approaching those seen in India.
- Steel demand has fallen to multi-year lows, driven by a slowdown in construction activity and an absence of new government-led infrastructure initiatives.
- Market sentiment remains clouded by uncertainty, discouraging buyers from taking firm positions despite the softer pricing environment.
- Expectations are growing that once the current pockets of buying activity conclude, prices may fall further and eventually align more closely with Indian market levels.

PAKISTAN

- Market sentiment has shown slight improvement, supported by recent activity on smaller units at modest price levels, indicating buyers' willingness to re-engage under more realistic market conditions.

- Expectations persist that additional tonnage will surface at similar levels, which could help maintain the market's cautiously positive outlook.

TURKIYE

- Market conditions have shown slight improvement, with both import and local dynamics strengthening, encouraging buyers to improve their offering levels.

- With this gradual change, buyers are expecting activity to increase if the current trend continues.
