MARKET SUMMARY

INDIA

- The market softened drastically by the end of the week, as sentiment turned sharply weaker following fresh concerns linked to a potential 500% U.S. tariff threat under a proposed sanctions bill targeting buyers of Russian oil.
- The broader commodity complex also softened, with several commodities recording sharp daily drops, further pressuring confidence.
- Buyers are mainly looking to buy tonnage strictly at market level, but we do not see much tonnage entering the market, keeping activity thin.
- Despite the softer local mood, international scrap prices remain firm, supported by Türkiye, which continues to underpin import levels.

BANGLADESH

- The market remains subdued, with very limited movement throughout the week.
- Buyer participation has become extremely thin, with only a few buyers genuinely able to purchase larger tonnages.
- These few active buyers are expected to take advantage of the weaker market sentiment, keeping negotiations heavily in their favor.
- Local prices have shown some momentum, but it is not drastic at this stage, and the market remains largely range-bound.

PAKISTAN

- Market sentiment is slightly better, with recyclers showing more willingness to engage compared to last week.
- Recyclers are mainly targeting bulker tonnage below the $400/lt level, keeping bid levels disciplined.
- The increase in international prices for re-rollable and shredded steel is giving local recyclers more optimism, supporting the overall sentiment.

TURKIYE

- Türkiye remained quiet this week as the market moved through the New Year holiday period, resulting in limited reportable activity.
- Price levels and sentiment remained unchanged, continuing to mirror last week's position.
